Superintendent's Report

Mr. Oliver provided an update on the district's Pre-K Counts program. Due to under-enrollment during the current school year, Mr. Oliver is proposing a Pre-K registration event similar to kindergarten registration to increase awareness, identify eligible students, and improve enrollment planning. The event is tentatively scheduled for May 22 in the Gator Den and would provide families with information about the program while allowing staff to conduct developmental screenings and identify student needs. Board members discussed the importance of increasing public awareness regarding Pre-K eligibility, including enrollment opportunities for children who turn four during the school year. Additional discussion focused on expanding outreach efforts and exploring ways to accommodate more preschool-aged children beyond those qualifying under income-based Pre-K Counts guidelines. Mr. Oliver noted that while the grant requires income eligibility for designated Pre-K Counts seats, Pennsylvania regulations permit up to 20 preschool students per classroom. The Board discussed the potential benefits of increased preschool participation, particularly in supporting early literacy and kindergarten readiness. A motion was made by Mr. Stake and seconded by Mr. Lathrop to add Pre-K Counts advertising to the agenda under Curriculum, Item A. The motion was carried unanimously.

Mr. Budd presented first-semester reading intervention data for middle school students. The report showed that the majority of participating seventh-grade students demonstrated at least one year of reading growth during the first semester. Overall, 81% of students showed growth in reading fluency, 88% showed growth in reading accuracy, and 81% demonstrated growth in reading comprehension. Board members requested similar intervention data for elementary students and discussed the reported results. Discussion included the relationship between reading fluency, accuracy, and comprehension, particularly among some students whose fluency and accuracy improved while comprehension scores remained unchanged or declined. Additional conversation focused on the importance of building students' background knowledge, vocabulary, oral language skills, and communication abilities beginning in the early grades. Mrs. Delacour emphasized the value of early childhood experiences, classroom discussion, and opportunities for students to develop speaking and listening skills as foundational components of literacy development. Mr. Budd acknowledged these concerns and the challenges associated with supporting comprehension and literacy growth across all grade levels.

Mr. Budd presented information related to credit recovery. He stated historically, students utilized the Penn Foster program, with parents paying the course fee upfront and receiving reimbursement from the district upon successful completion of the course with a grade of C or better. The cost of the program has increased significantly in recent years, rising from approximately $200 per course to $400 per course, contributing to a substantial decrease in enrollment. Mr. Budd stated he negotiated with Penn Foster resulting in a reduced rate of $225 per course; however, the provider now requires the district to pay all course fees upfront. Concerns were expressed regarding the financial risk to the district if students enroll but do not complete the courses. Based on current student failure data, administration estimated that as many as 101 students could require credit recovery, resulting in a potential cost of approximately $22,725. Board members discussed maintaining accountability by requiring families to have a financial commitment in the process, while acknowledging that past participation and completion rates had generally been positive when parents paid upfront and were later reimbursed. Mr. Budd that alternative options are being explored with other schools and providers in an effort to reduce costs and establish a sustainable credit recovery program. The Board emphasized the importance of having a credit recovery plan in place prior to the next scheduled meeting.

Mr. Budd informed the Board that several pieces of obsolete or unused equipment are being stored within the district and should be sold or otherwise disposed of. Items discussed included older cafeteria tables, a table saw that was replaced with a newer safety-equipped model, and several outdated gas cooking ranges. Administration proposed advertising the items for sale to determine whether there is community interest in purchasing them. Board members discussed the age and condition of the equipment and suggested that local organizations, churches, or neighboring schools may have an interest in acquiring some of the surplus items. There was general consensus to proceed with efforts to advertise and dispose of the equipment as appropriate.
